Reconstruction of a brick and concrete building of the 1920s, previously used as a school for industrial electricity training, into a tertiary building.
Reinstatement of the typical ancient facades.
The structures have been revealed, the concrete and bricks facades have been modified and the assembly is equipped with new external joinery. The colours and the nature of this joinery wake up the severe aspect of the building and nevertheless maintain its light aspect and the harmonious rhythm of the facade. "
The building includes a highly technical Computer Room.
